Superforts Smash Targets In Manchuria

ANSHAN, GREAT STEEL MAKING CENTER, BOMBED

B-29 Fleet Roars Out Of China Bases In Third Assault On Area

TOKYO ADMITS RAID
Airforce Fails To Announce Details—Believed Waiting Return Of Airmen

BULLETIN
By International News Service
The Tokyo domestic radio said today that some 70 American planes had raided Anshan in occupied Manchuria "for about an hour" starting at 1:30 p. m. (Tokyo time) today while a "small number" of other planes struck at Darien and the Kwantung peninsula.
Later an English-language wireless transmission by the Japanese Domei agency, directed to North America and recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said that Penhsu, important coal mining and iron processing center, had also been raided.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—A fleet of giant American B-29 Superfortress bombers roared out of their China bases today to smash strategic military targets in Japanese-dominated Manchuria.

While no further details were contained in the 20th Airforce's announcement of the third attack on Manchuria by the huge planes, Tokyo radio earlier said enemy ships had attempted to raid the great steel producing city of Anshan and "other localities."

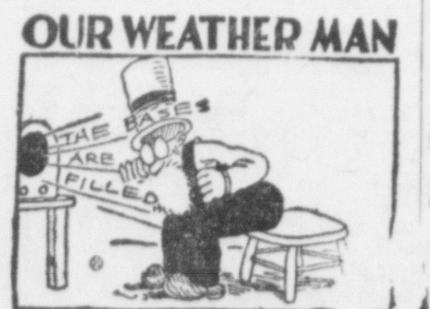

The FCC said the Japanese identification of "two other towns" reported attacked along with Anshan was garbled but monitors said the names sounded like Andan, 1.2 miles south of Anshan, and the port city of Darien.

The Japanese communiqué said the attacking planes had been engaged in "fierce combat" by Japanese air defenses.

Raid Admitted
"Enemy planes again flew over southern Manchukuo (Manchuria) and attempted to raid Anshan and other localities," said the enemy radio. "However, the enemy raiders were engaged in fierce combat by the Japanese air defense which were ready for them."

PAC DECLARED UNION THREAT

Democracy Also Facing Danger From Action, Jeffers Claims

CHICAGO, Sept. 26—The CIO Political Action Committee threatens unions themselves as well as democracy with "disintegration," should it achieve its purposes, William M. Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific railroad and former rubber administrator under President Roosevelt, declared today.

Jeffers, speaking to the 70th annual convention of the American Bankers Association, declared he resents the PAC as an American citizen and as a man who has "carried a union card all his working life, and still does."

"No Political Action Committee or any group or individual," he said, "is going to tell me or any upheaded American in this country how he is going to vote or what he is going to think."
"If the sorry day should ever come when nefarious schemes like this succeed, then on that day the disintegration of American labor unions starts and democracy begins to crumble."

In view of the probable temper of returning servicemen after the war, Jeffers said, "it may go hard with any individual or group who attempts to herd them in a civil non-thinking regiment or attempt to stamp them in a common mold."
Jeffers described the movement as "a pernicious innovation that has literally snaked its way into American politics, and in its active (Continued on Page Two)"

COMMITTEE WILL STUDY PROBLEMS OF OHIO CITIES

COLUMBUS, Sept. 26—A committee to study peace time problems of municipalities for the Ohio Postwar Program Commission was named today by Lt. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, commission chairman.
The committee, headed by Fred I. Rowe, Columbus contractor and commission member, will hold its first luncheon meeting Thursday in Columbus.
Herbert said the committee would cooperate with the postwar planning groups of the various cities to draft possible legislation on common problems, which would be included in the postwar commission's recommendations to the general assembly which convenes in January.

"A possible change in the state law to permit short-term tax levies for five years or so by a 55 percent vote is one of the subjects which will be considered," Herbert said.

GRIPSHOLM IN NEW YORK WITH 233 WOUNDED MEN

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 26—The Swedish motorship Gripsholm, carrying a precious cargo of 233 sick and wounded American soldiers, reached the New York harbor today and nosed her way slowly to her docking place at Jersey City.

The Gripsholm arrived at quarantine at mid-morning for a routine inspection, and will dock at pier F, Jersey City, later in the day. The wounded and ailing soldiers will be rushed immediately to Haddonfield general hospital on Staten Island.

COUPLE AGHAST AFTER VICTORY OVER BANDIT

CHICAGO, Sept. 26—A middle-aged delicatessen owner and his wife were somewhat aghast today at the narrow escape they had at the hands of an armed bandit, but they had no qualms of fear at the time.

Gustav F. Kissel, 57, was alone in the store when he walked a stocky bandit who drew a nickel-plated revolver and announced: "This is a stick-up."
"Go on, get out of here," replied the doughty Gustav, grabbing a ginger ale bottle for a weapon at the same time.

Gustav, a wiry, 6-foot Swede, with his left hand seized the bandit's right, which held the gun. The gunman reciprocated by grabbing Kissel's right hand (which held the ginger ale bottle) with his, the gunman's left.

This left them stalemated, except that every time the bandit would wrench the gun to a firing position aimed at Kissel, he pulled the trigger. Kissel heard the hammer click three times, but there was no explosion.

"That didn't scare me," said Kissel afterward. "I figured the gun wasn't loaded."
But as he wasn't getting anywhere in his tussle, he kicked on the door leading to the living quarters in the rear and called for his wife, Adelaide:

"Hey, mom, come on out here!" Mom, 145 pounds of her, came a running and seized up the situation in a flash. In another flash, she kicked the gunman in the groin with a fury that doubled him up with pain and caused him to drop the .38 caliber revolver.

A moment later, he staggered to the door and disappeared. When Police Sgt. Thomas Dunderdale arrived, he asked to see the gun. He broke it open. Gustav turned white. So did Mom.
It was fully loaded. On three of the shells, the marks of the firing pin were plain.

NAZIS' FLIGHTS MAY BE BALKED

Britain Determined To Close All Refuges To War Criminals

LONDON, Sept. 26—The British government is resolved to do its utmost to prevent Nazi criminals from finding refuge in neutral countries, Prime Minister Winston Churchill declared in a statement to the house of commons today on his return to London from Quebec.

The prime minister, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden announced, will deliver an address on the international situation in commons Thursday and there will be debate Thursday and Friday.

Churchill's statement on war criminals was prompted by a question, attributed to Sir Cecil Hurst, chairman of the United Nations War Crime Commission, asking if Hitler managed to escape to a neutral country whether the Allies could do anything about it.

"I understand that the remarks attributed to Sir Cecil Hurst in the newspapers do not represent accurately what he said," the prime minister declared.

"It is one of those cases of taking out detached sentences from their context and not having proper regard to all the necessary and limiting phrases and words which are proper to a public statement."

"His Majesty's government are resolved to do their utmost to prevent any Nazi criminals finding refuge in neutral territories from the consequences of their crimes."

"It is not our intention to allow the escape of these men to be effected without exerting almost every effort which the civilized powers can contemplate."

Churchill was cheered on his visit to commons.

POPE RECEIVES FULL LIST OF HUN ATROCITIES

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 26—Pope Pius XII granted a lengthy audience today to Elia Cardinal Della Costa, archbishop of Florence, who presented a white book documenting Nazi and Fascist atrocities committed in Florence after the Germans had proclaimed Florence an open city.

The cardinal's paper stressed German army violations and the cardinal asked the Pope to consider publication at the earliest possible time.

HARD ECONOMIC BLOW DIRECTED AT ARGENTINA

Blacklist Of Firms Will Be Continued Following Fall Of Germany

U. S., BRITAIN PLAN MOVE

Total Of 44 Countries And Territories Will Feel Effect Of Bans

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—A severe economic blow was directed against Argentina today by the disclosure that the blacklist of firms trading with the Axis will definitely be continued after the collapse of Germany.

Of the 44 countries and territories whose nationals have been placed on the "proclaimed list of blocked nations" (the black list), Argentina has the greatest number.

Today's action—in which the United States was joined by the British government—was described by the state department as "required in order to permit the Allied governments to deal properly with firms which have been part and parcel of the Axis effort in gaining world domination."

The official statement made no reference to Argentina by name but a tabulation of the proclaimed list showed that the South American country, which Secretary of State Cordell Hull has repeatedly described as having a "Fascist" government, led all the rest.

Others on List

Other countries, in order of numbers on the list, are: Chile, 1,451; Switzerland, 1,290; Spain, 1,284; Peru, 1,163; Portugal, 1,150; Colombia, 1,123; and Sweden, 479.

This tabulation revealed that the Nazis have attempted to make commercial connections far more widely in Latin America than in Europe. The number of blacklisted firms in Latin America was 9,915, while the total for all other countries was 5,496.

Officials explained that postwar retention of the blacklist—which denies these firms the right to deal with the United Nations—will be longer in some countries than in others. The termination depends on the rapidly with which the (Continued on Page Two)

FOURTH TERM DRIVE HEADED BY SHERWOOD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—Playwright Robert E. Sherwood, credited with being one of President Roosevelt's best "ghost writers," was firmly established today as a leader of the fourth-term campaign.

Sherwood, in a letter to Elmer Davis, chief of the Office of War Information, resigned as director of the OWI's overseas branch to devote himself to politics.

The playwright long has collaborated with Mr. Roosevelt in writing speeches and is credited with having written a major portion of President's Saturday night address.

Commenting on the resignation, Sen. Hugh Butler (R) Neb., said "I assume that Sherwood plans to help Mr. Roosevelt write campaign speeches," and added:

"It will be interesting to see if the assumption that he was ordered to retire so that he could write campaign speeches and scenarios, proves to be true."

Butler said "I presume he can't be criticized if he left his war job in order to obey the commander-in-chief."

Sherwood himself said it was his conviction that Mr. Roosevelt's re-election "and the peoples' endorsement of the principles, both domestic and foreign, for which his administration stands, are of supreme importance in this hour of history."

He said he left the OWI because it must maintain a rigidly non-partisan position.

Scathing Denunciation Of Roosevelt Sounded, Record Cited As "Bad"

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 26—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey headed home today—via Sapulpa and Tulsa—after a scathing personal denunciation of President Roosevelt, whom he accused of "demagoguery," substitution of "wisecracks" for jobs, and failure to prepare the nation's defenses for war.

With the end of his 6,700-mile transcontinental tour in sight, the Republican presidential nominee told a crowd of 15,000 which overflowed Oklahoma city's municipal auditorium, as well as a nationwide radio audience, that:

1.—President Roosevelt's record has been "desperately bad" and the American people will "restore integrity to the White House so that its spoken word can be trusted once again."

2.—The President, in his speech Saturday night, descended to "mud-slinging and 'used the tactics of our enemies by quoting Mein Kampf.'"

3.—Countless American lives were lost because of the President's "sad record of failing to prepare the defenses of this country for war."

4.—Statements by the President's own appointees and members of his party bore out charges that the administration failed to (Continued on Page Two)

POLICE PROBING SUFFOCATION OF THREE CHILDREN

AKRON, Sept. 26—Akron police today investigated the death by suffocation of three small children when fire broke out in an apartment in the Elizabeth park federal housing project last night.

The victims were James, 5; Joyce, 3, and Thayer Johnson, 16 months, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Ardis H. Johnson. The father is in the Army.

Police said the youngsters probably were overcome by fumes from celluloid toilet articles that caught fire on the bedroom dresser. A half-hour effort to resuscitate the children failed and they were pronounced dead at St. Thomas' hospital.

The mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, police said, told them that she had left the apartment for about 15 minutes while she mailed a letter.

BRITISH POUND AT ELST

Second Army Reported In Doorn Area—Liberation Of Estonia Near

BULLETIN
LONDON, Sept. 26—A terrific aerial pounding of the port and artillery site of Calais got under way again today when hundreds of Allied bombers smothered the area with high explosive and incendiary bombs.

By International News Service
A major American offensive from the Epinal-Remiremont sector against the vital Belfort gap leading into Germany was reported by the Berlin radio today as British troops battled savagely to relieve the Allied air-borne army at Arnhem.

Headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had no comment to make on the reported Belfort attack.

A censorship blackout shrouded the fluid developments on Europe's flaming battlefronts. But from enemy broadcasts and the brief official information available, this was the general picture:

1.—British Second Army troops battled fiercely to gain control of Elst in central Holland in an effort to open the main supply road between Nijmegen and the airborne force at Arnhem.

2.—Other Second Army troops were reported to have reached the vicinity of Doorn, where the late Kaiser Wilhelm spent 21 years in exile.

3.—The German agency DNE reported that United States Third Army forces have widened their bridgehead across the Moselle and deepened it by several miles. Repulse of Allied attacks in Western Holland was claimed.

4.—Nazi sources estimated that between three and four Allied airborne divisions have now been thrown into the battle of Central Holland.

5.—An entirely unconfirmed French radio report, undoubtedly premature, said that Allied forces had captured the German town of Cleve at the northern end of the Siegfried line.

A London broadcast heard by NBC said that German prisoners taken since D-day now exceed 544,000. Another British broadcast said that Canadian troops have been forced to abandon a recently established bridgehead on the Antwerp-Turnhout canal.

The heaviest fighting on the Dutch front centered around Elst, which is still in enemy hands and thus a major obstacle to the relief of Arnhem, headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said.

DONALD NELSON MAY RETURN TO PRIVATE LIFE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—Friends of Donald M. Nelson indicated today that the WPB chairman may retire from government service except for special missions for President Roosevelt such as his recent trip to China.

It is known that Nelson previously has received attractive offers to return to private industry. Associates said it is unlikely, however, that he will return to Sears-Roebuck where he was executive vice president before entering the defense program.

Moreover, it has become increasingly evident that Nelson will not return to the helm of WPB where J. A. Krug has served as acting chairman during Nelson's trip to China to study means of increasing that nation's industrial effort.

Nelson was scheduled to report to President Roosevelt today on his China mission. It was believed that the final decision on the WPB chairman's future status in Washington would be determined at the same time.

NEW DEAL HIT AS DEM SOLON TURNS TO GOP

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26—State Sen. Jack B. Tenney of Los Angeles today registered as a member of the Republican party and was supporting Gov. Dewey and the entire Republican ticket after publicly denouncing the Democratic party.

He had been a Democrat since the beginning of his political career.

In announcing his resignation as a Democrat, he charged that the party "has been taken over lock, stock and barrel by Sidney Hillman, the CIO Political Action Committee and the Communist party."

Tenney was a member of the assembly for three terms and is now serving his first term as a state senator. His service has included the chairmanship of the legislative committee investigating un-American activities.

"The Constitution of the United States and government by law is being continually by-passed and people are being sold down the river by demagogues who are more interested in holding office than in doing the job according to law," he declared in his parting blast at the Democrats.

"The New Deal-Hillman-CIO-Marxist party is determined to lead the United States into state Socialism."

east from the vital supply corridor through Holland achieved gains of several miles east of the Eindhoven-Nijmegen area freeing the towns of Helmond and Deurne 14 miles east of Eindhoven. The fresh Allied advance to take Deurne placed British units only 40 miles from the Rhine industrial city of Duisburg while other Allied forces smashed back German counter-attacks aimed to cut the Eindhoven-Nijmegen-Arnhem corridor.

West of the corridor, west of Turnhout, Allied troops forced German defenders back to obtain a bridgehead across the Antwerp-Turnhout canal. Turnhout was captured.

South along the western front, from the area about Aachen to the Meurthe valley, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's communique reported little change in battle positions. Sporadic artillery fire and continued German patrolling marked the action in the northern part of this sector.

On the Italian front Nazi Marshal Albert Kesselring hurled fresh troops in three determined counter-blows against American Fifth Army forces smashing for the Po valley through the center of the battered Gothic Line. Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's forces drove back the counter-attacks and swept ahead to score important gains along the Firenze-Molva highway.

On the American right flank British units of The Fifth Army made important gains to seize strategic high ground and take the villages of Palazuela and Marradi.

Eighth Army troops on the Adriatic coast gained 2,000 yards to occupy Bordonchio, six miles north of Rimini.

On the Russian front Soviet fighters of the Leningrad army nearly completed the liberation of Estonia, sweeping through that Baltic country in advances which cost German defenders huge numbers of men and war machines.

Three other Russian armies, battling to clear the Baltic states of German invaders before winter, drew nearer their goal as Soviet forces east of the Latvian capital of Riga crashed through the Nazi delaying "winter line" in bloody fighting and threw a ring of steel about the approaches to Riga.

From the southwest Pacific came word of the setting of a new combat efficiency record. A navy patrol plane, engaged in a routine night patrol over the Philippines, spotted two Jap destroyer escorts refueling from a big seaplane tender.

The Catalina went into a bombing run, sank the three enemy ships with one pass. The American bombs sank the two smaller vessels at once. The seaplane tender capsized and sank within a short time.

country in question carries out expropriation of blacklisted firms.

One Way Out

In other words, where a government takes prompt action to expropriate these firms and set up new ownership, the operation of the blacklist can more rapidly be removed.

By way of example, state department officials declared today that "Mexico has done one of the best jobs in the hemisphere" in expropriating these firms.

On the other hand, it was stated, the blacklist will be kept in force in Argentina for an indefinite period, and the same will be true in certain European countries.

In the official statement today, three reasons were given for continuing the blacklist control:

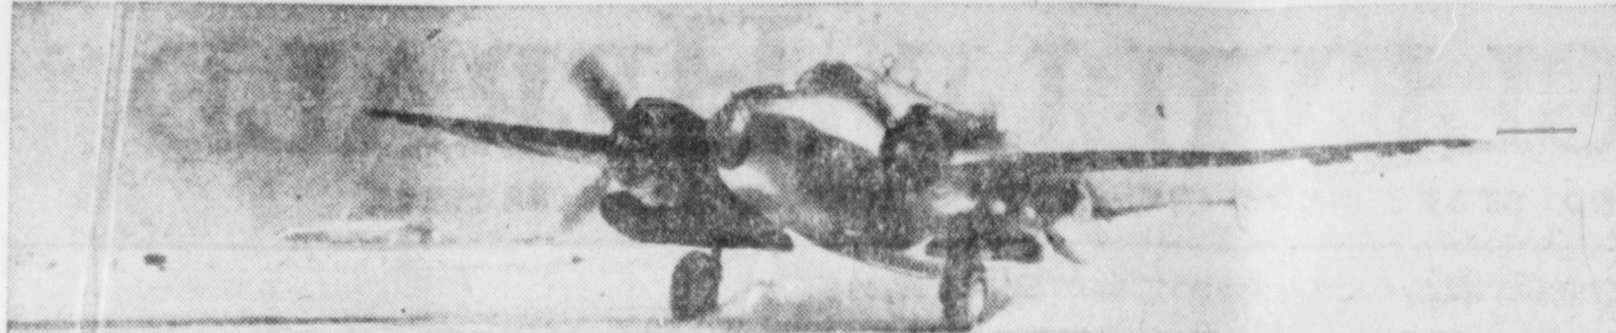

1. To supplant Allied control of the head offices of these firms in Germany.

2. To restrict "those firms that have sold themselves out to the Axis through their desire to make temporary exorbitant profits at the expense of the cause of democracy."

3. To maintain controls over foreign assets, "which have been looted from their rightful owners by the Axis governments."

As a final punch, the state department declared:

"The lists will also constitute a means of furthering the war-time economic strangulation of Japan."

HEROES ALL ON "EMPIRE EXPRESS"

Flyers Who Roam
Fog-Choked, Icy
Aleutian Skies
Ride With Death
Each Bitter Mile

By ANDREW R. BOONE
Central Press Correspondent

BURBANK, Cal. — "King Size Patrol." That's what team members of the "Empire Express" call their operation. But theirs is gross understatement.

For many months of darkness they have flown over the northern edge of the world from the Aleutians to photograph and rain bombs on the Japanese mainland.

Their is a battle against two foes—the Japs and the Arctic weather. And the weather is worse than the Japs.

Flying the fast, rugged Lockheed Ventura bombers, they invade Japanese territory with stubborn regularity in weather that would appall an Eskimo.

Their targets are the Kurile island fortresses north of Tokyo, Paramushiro and Shimushu, all Japanese homeland.

These men fly in fog and snowstorms which make formation flying impossible. So they fly alone.

Usually they fly on instruments and at night, pitch black as only Aleutian nights can be. In Arctic temperatures, 60 below zero, the fliers took turns plugging in their heated flying suits to ward off death by freezing.

Their planes loaded up to and beyond the limit with bombs and fuel, they take off from icy runways in williwaw crosswinds that lash the snow and fog across the Navy flying field with a force that would ground airplanes any place else in the world.

They Can't Come Down

They dare not know failure, for the life expectancy of any crew forced down in the Aleutians is 20 minutes. And the "Empire Express" run is longer than the average heavy bomber mission over Europe.

Recently members of one squadron—the Navy calls it Squadron X—came home. Among them is Lt. Douglas Birdsall, Pomona, Cal.

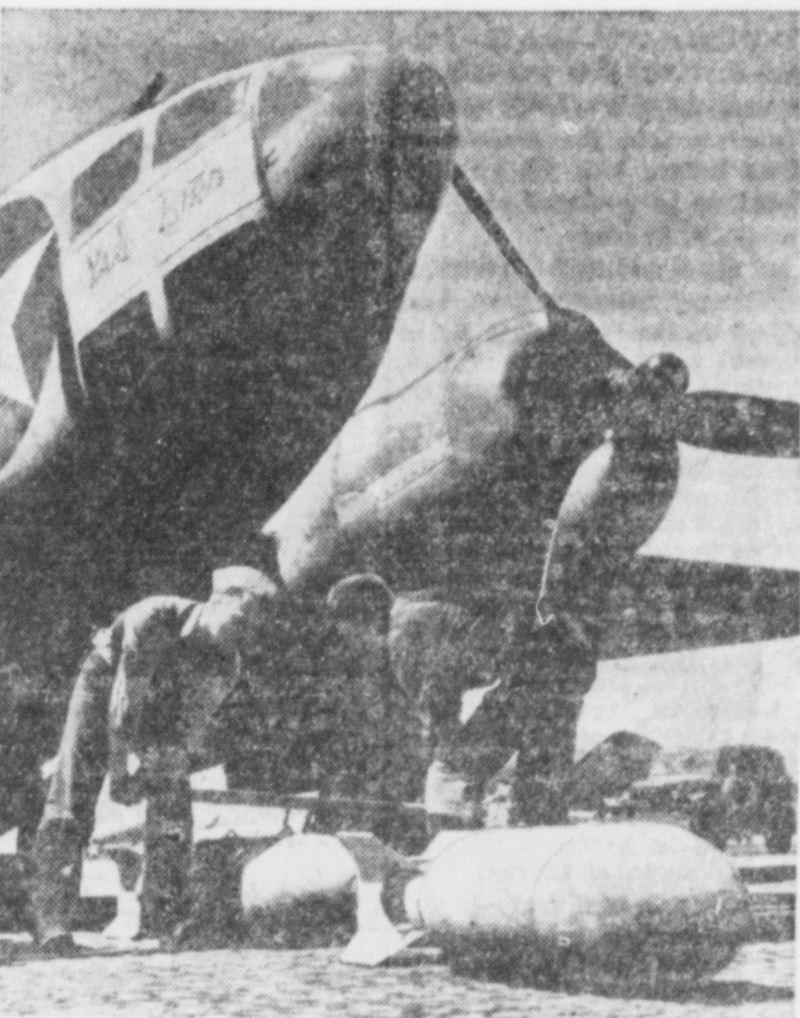

"We didn't dare miss," comments Lieutenant Birdsall, who piloted a plane in the first flight over Paramushiro. "There's no place to set a plane down. You've got to go all the way to your target and all the way back."

Toughest flying job in man's flying experience, yet in nine months Squadron X flew 825,000 nautical miles, representing 4,177 hours of combat, reconnaissance and patrol, with not a single plane lost in combat.

"We had plenty of close calls," Lieutenant Birdsall tells us. "Sometimes our planes would come in hours late with gas tanks so close to being dry that it gave you cold chills thinking about it. "Over the target ack-ack was sporadic. Some nights the Japs would give us hell. "Other nights they would pull a of muck we flew in was no cinch," says Lt. G. B. McKinney, another X-squadron pilot, from Alhambra, Cal.

"One of our boys, Lt. Ralph Lowe of Ogden, Utah, found himself over the island unable to orient himself. On a deal of that kind a pilot almost counts the revolutions of his motors like a man listening to the beats of his heart if his jugular were cut.

"You don't hang around long, you do something—and fast. Lowe took his plane down through the fog and strafed hell out of the whole area."

"We didn't recommend Lowe's technique as a general rule," declares Lieutenant Birdsall. "There were Jap fighter planes to think about, although the PV-1 is faster than the best Nips have."

Two Objectives

The "Empire Express" has two objectives to fulfill—harassment of the Japs on Paramushiro and Shimushu, and a trial reconnaissance. The harassment was accomplished with 500-pound bombs and with "daisy cutters," and photographs revealed that their bombing missions were "effective."

Flares made it possible to photograph the enemy's airfields and gun emplacements and night reconnaissance proved more effective than daylight missions. Members of Squadron X took great delight in ferreting out Jap installations in the Kuriles and then returning to bomb them.

Although the men of "Squadron X" now are home on leave, other sections of the "Express," under the command of Commodore Leslie E. Gehres, of Seattle, Wash., commander of Fleet Air Wing Four, are carrying on.

Jeffers said, the government will find "itself stuck in the mud . . . with nothing to unload."

Jeffers urged bankers to aid small business after the war through longer maturity loans, amortization of principal to avoid shock to the borrower on maturity date, lending on a wider variety of collateral and the abandonment of "some old rate books."

prepare for war and planned to keep men in the army after the war because it didn't know how to provide jobs for them in civilian life.

5.—President Roosevelt is "indispensable" only to the "motley crew" which includes Harry Hopkins, Madame Perkins, Harold Ickes, Mayor Frank Hague, Sidney Hillman and Earl Browder, the "ex-convict and pardoned communist leader."

6.—President Roosevelt, in his opening speech, abandoned the "high sounding pledge" that he would not campaign in the usual sense by delivering a speech of "mud-slinging, ridicule and wisecracks, which plumbed the depths of demagoguery."

Joking Resented

7.—President Roosevelt resorted to joking about depressions and "waged war against the nation's job-making machinery," and now has "no better or different program to offer."

The Oklahoma City speech was in sharp contrast to the six previous Dewey talks. It was described by veteran political reporters as one of the sharpest attacks in modern American politics by one presidential candidate against another.

Gov. Dewey told the voters that he removed the foil from his campaign sword because President Roosevelt, in his Saturday speech, "asked for it." He insisted, however, that it is not his purpose to stoop to mud-slinging.

Taking the issues raised by the President one by one, the Republican nominee repeated the charges labeled "false" by Mr. Roosevelt. He said it had not been his intention to "take over" the Roosevelt record in the field of preparedness for war, but that he was impelled to do so by the latter's insistence that the charge of unpreparedness was a "falsification" which not even Goebbels would have attempted.

"Now, were we prepared for war, or were we not?" asked Gov. Dewey. "It is a simple question of fact."

Marshall's Arguments

Marshall his arguments, the GOP nominee proceeded to:

1.—Quote a statement by Gen. Marshall that in 1940, a year after war commenced in Europe, the nation had a mobile force of only 75,000 men and the army was only 25 per cent ready.

2.—Quote Gen. H. H. Arnold as stating that the army air force, on December 7, 1941, was "equipped with plans but not with planes."

3.—Quote Sen. Harry S. Truman, Democratic candidate for vice president, as saying on the senate floor, four months before Pearl Harbor, that the White House was to blame for the then state of national preparedness.

4.—Quote Majority Leader Sen. Alben W. Barkley, as saying, in his speech nominating President Roosevelt for the fourth term, that "when the treachery of Pearl Harbor came we were not ready."

5.—Quote President Roosevelt himself as stating, in 1935, that "there is no ground for apprehension that our relations with any nation will be otherwise than peaceful"; in 1937, that circumstance permitted use of our money for roads and bridges "rather than into huge standing armies and vast implements of war."

Gov. Dewey recalled that when he publicly called for a two-ocean navy in January, 1940, President Roosevelt dismissed the suggestion as "just plain dumb."

"Then as now," he asserted, "we got ridicule instead of action."

"The war rose in fury. When Hitler's armies were at the gates of Paris, Mr. Roosevelt again sounded the American people with the jolly comment: There is no need for the country to be 'discombobulated'."

"The simple truth is, of course, that Mr. Roosevelt's record is desperately bad. It is not one on which any man should seek the confidence of the American people. That's why it is time for a change."

Training his guns on President Roosevelt's statement that it was a "malicious falsehood" to say he ever represented himself as "indispensable," Gov. Dewey quoted both Sen. Truman and Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago as making that claim, adding that neither has yet been repudiated by the President.

"I have not heard Mr. Truman repudiated by Mr. Roosevelt as yet," he added. "He waits to shed vice presidents until they have served at least one term.

"Let's get this straight. The man who wants to be president for 16 years is indeed indispensable. He is indispensable to Harry Hopkins, to Madame Perkins, to Mr. old Ickes, to a host of other political jobholders."

"He is indispensable to America's leading enemy of civil liberties—the mayor of Jersey City. He is indispensable to those infamous machines in Chicago—in the Bronx—and all the others. He is indispensable to Sidney Hillman, the Political Action Committee, to Earl Browder, the ex-convict and pardoned communist leader."

"Shall we, the American people, perpetuate one man in office for 16 years in order to accommodate this motley crew? Shall we submit to the counsel of despair that in all the great expanse of our nation there is only one man capable of occupying the White House? The American people will answer that question in November. They will see that we restore integrity to the White House so that its spoken word can be trusted once more."

"I say the time has come to put a stop to everything that is summed up in that phrase, 'the indispensable man.'"

Importance attached to the Dewey speech here was evidenced by the fact that it was carried by 288 radio stations, 164 having added after the GOP nominee decided to scrap his original Oklahoma City speech and go all out in his reply to the Roosevelt speech.

Gov. Dewey was to visit a nephew home of his wife's parents, for two hours today and to confer with Republican leaders at Tulsa later in the day. He then will entrain for Albany, where he is due Thursday morning.

ANSHAN, GREAT STEEL MAKING CENTER, BOMBED

ington later in the day. In the case of the two previous raids on Manchuria by the B-29's details were withheld until all planes had returned from their mission.

The city of Anshan is the second largest steel-producing center in the Jap empire. Some 60 miles south of Mukden on the key South Manchuria railroad, Anshan is believed to have an expanded wartime population of almost 200,000.

The Showa steel works, one of the largest operated by the Japanese anywhere, is located at Anshan. Other firms in the city include the Manchuria Lead Mining Corp., the Manchuria Steel Materials Co., the Manchuria Rolling Mill Machinery Co. and the Onoda Cement Co., the last-named firm producing blast furnace cement.

Jack London lived in the "Valley of the Moon" in Sonoma county, California. The scene of his novel of that name was laid there.

He declared the Political Action Committee "proposes to force American Labor to contribute from its wages to a political campaign not only opposes, but is then coerced into voting for principles and candidates to which it is opposed." He added:

"I was a union man before the un-American element, now dominating segments of American labor, was born. The Railroad Brotherhoods know where and how I stand."

The Union Pacific head charged that the government's recent anti-trust suit against western railroads was politically inspired and actually directed against the interstate commerce commission.

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Corporal Marvin McCain, son of Mr. and Mrs. David McCain, of Walnut township, is with the 37th Division stationed somewhere in the South Pacific. His mother and father received a box last week from him and it contained: two sea-shell bracelets and one sea-shell necklace for his sister, Gladys, and niece, Eileen Albin; one silver bracelet and necklace for his sister, Mary Lou; one hunting knife for his brother, Paul, and a cat's-eye ring and several pieces of paper and silver money issued by the islands of Fiji and New Zealand and by the Japanese.

Cpl. McCain enlisted in the armed forces February 6, 1941. Mr. and Mrs. McCain have another son, Lewis, stationed somewhere in England.

Willard H. (Buss) Hosier, S 2/c, has returned to Camp Endicott at Davisville, Rhode Island, after spending a 10-day leave with his family at their home 152 Logan street.

Donald E. Smallwood, 17, Circleville route 2, is receiving his initial Naval indoctrination at the U. S. Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

His recruit training consists of instruction in seamanship, military drill, and general Naval procedure. During this period, a series of aptitude tests will be taken by the recruit to determine whether he will be assigned to a Naval Service School to immediate duty at sea. When his recruit training is completed, the seaman will receive a period of leave.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Timmons, of Kingston, received a letter Saturday from their son, Hoyt Timmons, who is a prisoner of war in Germany. He said that he had received lots of mail that had been written in February and March, mentioning letters from John Kerns and Dr. Gay L. Hitler, also a package mailed in March. He said also that he had received several letters from F. K. Blair and that he had written to the E. E. Porter family. He asked his parents to thank those who had written to him and said to mention that he could not answer them all as he was permitted to write only four letters each month. He expressed much pleasure for the messages received from friends. He has been a prisoner of war in Germany since February, 1943.

Carl Bach, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Bach, East Main street, has this as his correct address: A/C Carl Bach, ASN 35222329, Sqd. 4-A, Class 45A, Sec. H, A. A. F. (Basic), Gunter Field, Ala.

Corporal Roselyn Dreisbach of the Marine Corps Women's Reserve is in Chicago, Ill., for some special training. Her mail should be addressed: 510 Arlington Place, Chicago, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. George Reeser, 625 Maplewood Avenue, have received a letter from their son, Howard, telling them that he is hospitalized in England for wounds received in action in France, August 4. He told his parents that he would be there for some time, although he did not tell them of the nature of his injuries. He has been overseas since June and friends may get his address from his parents. Another son, Private First Class Harold Reeser, of the airborne infantry, has not been heard from for five weeks. In his last letter, written in England, he told them that he had taken part in the D-Day invasion of France.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Marshall, Walnut township, have received several pictures of their son, Clarence, a technical corporal in the medical corps in service in the South Pacific with the 37th Division. He says that he is fine, but looks somewhat older and thinner. In one picture he is shown with his cousin, Dr. Leonard Sells. Cpl. Marshall mentions that he has received no news of Pete Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cook, Walnut township, who is in Hawaii.

AAA ASKS FOR EARLY REPORT ON CROP PLANS

Dewey Downs, member of the Pickaway county AAA committee in charge of the check of performance work in this county office asked farmers today to report to their community committeeman or to the county office as soon as they have completed all production practices on their farms for 1944.

"Payments cannot be made until the farmer has reported all his practices for the year have been completed," Mr. Downs explained. "Such production practices as cannot be completed until after December 31, 1944, will be credited to the 1945 conservation program."

The county AAA committeeman urged farmers to earn their full allowance for carrying out soil-building practices.

"It is more essential than ever," he said, "that we use our soil wisely in achieving the production required in wartime."

THESE two important steps may help you to overcome the discomforts or embarrassment of sour stomach, jerky nerves, loss of appetite, underweight, digestive complaints, weakness, poor complexion!

Recipe for cooking Japanese goose!

1. Take the courage and superb skill of America's men of the air...
2. Take the new giant Super-Fortress, with more than twice the bomb load of former heavy bombers...

4. Add a few cupfuls of EX-TANES for each gallon of gasoline... and you have Uncle Sam's own special recipe for cooking Japanese goose.

3. Take four 18-cylinder 2,200 horsepower airplane engines, amazing new super-power plants with very long flying range...

For EX-TANES are so powerful that mere cupfuls added to a gallon of base stock gasoline transform it into the world's highest grade aviation fuel. With the help of this fuel America's new Super-Fortresses are able to strike at the heart of Japan from distant bases. Today our bombers can carry heavier bomb loads farther, faster and higher than ever before, with "the added cupfuls of EX-TANES"... And tomorrow Soho's war experience will mean better gasolines for you... THE STANDARD OIL CO. (OHIO)

LOAFERS OR ALLIES

WITH surprise, and also a glow of satisfaction, some of the war correspondents are discovering that people at home really seem to know what is going on in the war. Thus Quentin Reynolds, in a little sheet called the Camp Murphy Message, published in Florida, tells this eye-opener.

He was in Sicily when they were trying to take San Stefano, and the Colonel said bitterly: "Back in Palermo they don't even know there's a war on."

When he reached Palermo, a captain sadly remarked that in Algiers they didn't even know there was a war on.

In Algiers a little later, a staff officer told him that at home they didn't know there was a war on.

Then he came home. And to his surprise he discovered that wherever he went, American civilians really did know there was a war on. Better still, they were actually doing something about it. And for every man who has been on strike, he says, there have been 10,000 breaking their backs over lathes and drill presses, loyally and intelligently.

So he concludes: "Stop rapping the folks back home. Believe it or not, ninety per cent of them wish they were with you. Give the people at home a break. They're our allies, aren't they?"

CHESTNUTS RETURN

Ohio is rejoicing this fall—with its fingers crossed. The first crop of chestnuts in 25 years is ripening. Not horse-chestnuts, mind you, but those delectable morsels of which sacksful, painfully extracted from their prickly burrs, once reposed in the cellars of families having small boys to collect them.

A quarter of a century ago state forestry experts fought valiantly but in vain to conquer the strange blight which killed not only every chestnut tree in the state, but also new sprouts. Loss of the trees meant not only the absence of nuts from the markets, but also of the lumber, which was a valuable building material.

So five years ago the state conservation department tried raising young trees imported from Asia. And they grew. They not only grew, but flourished, apparently untouched by the fatal blight. It will be many years before chestnuts and chestnut lumber are once more important factors in the domestic economy of the state, but the first crop is in, and the state rejoices.

There seems to be as much strategy in a political campaign as in a military one.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Army observers report that there is all the difference in the world between the way the civilian population of France is being handled and the system employed in North Africa and Italy. They give credit for the efficient operation to General De Gaulle.

General Eisenhower arranged to turn things over to De Gaulle's provisional government immediately after the Allies captured a town or city. So in the wake of the Allied Armies, posters are tacked up which are brief and to the point.

They read: "All laws and degrees of the Vichy Government are hereby rescinded. The laws of the French Republic are hereby restored. The Provisional French Government will be in control until elections can be held."

General Eisenhower is also turning over all French collaborationists to De Gaulle's provisional government. He is not attempting to punish them himself, is even giving the Free French all Allied records on the pro-Nazi activities of Frenchmen.

This is in contrast to the occupation of North Africa, where State Department Diplomat Robert Murphy meddled incessantly, tried to protect certain Frenchmen, decreed what Frenchmen should run the government.

The efficient plan now operating in France is partially prompted by Ambassador William Phillips, political adviser to Eisenhower, whom the British forced out, the same meddling Bob Murphy has been following his critical report on India. Now appointed to handle the political set-up in Germany.

JESSE JONES' NEPHEWS

Jesse Jones is complaining to friends that he is having nephew trouble. He says that his nephew, George Butler, got into a lot of trouble when he was chairman of the Texas Democratic convention last May, which instructed its electors to vote against Roosevelt in the electoral college next November.

"And now," moans Jesse, "folks are saying that Herman Jones is my nephew."

Herman Jones is the law associate of Roosevelt leader Alvin Wirtz, and so as just as strong for Roosevelt as George Butler is against. So when Jesse's remark reached Herman Jones, he asserted:

"If anyone says I'm Jesse Jones' nephew, I'll sue him for libel."

CAPITOL CHAFF

California's Governor Warren cancelled engagements, gave all his time to trust-busting Assistant Attorney General Wendell Berge when the latter came to Sacramento. Berge sold him on the idea that as long as monopolies prevail the West will be hamstrung. "It is the big steel companies of the east," Berge told him, "that won't let steel mills get started in the west." . . . With a real unemployment problem to face after the war, Warren is now an enthusiastic cartel-buster. . . . When the nine old men and all Circuit Court of Appeals chief justices sat down with the Federal Bar association for their annual luncheon, they talked not about law, but about European battlefields. The speaker was Under Secretary of War Patterson, just back from France, and a former Circuit Court judge himself. Go-getting Assistant Attorney General Tom Clark, president of the Federal Bar, conceived the idea. . . .

DIET AND HEALTH

Data On Unfitness From Draft Boards

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

THE REPORT of the medical draft boards brought down to date shows that roughly one out of every five young American men is unfit for military service—a total of a little over 4,000,000 men, aged 18 to 37. So stated the report looks worse than it actually is. Many of the defects—for instance eye defects—while unacceptable in soldiers, can be remedied in most cases sufficiently to allow a man to work in civil life or industry and do not really impair his health. Taking every group of this general kind—hernia, teeth, overweight and underweight, feet, etc.—the number of draftees rejected for such reasons was nearly one-fourth of the whole—750,000.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

There is another group of 300,000 put down as "Musculo-skeletal defects" the figures for which I have not seen broken down. I presume it would include cases of residual paralysis from old poliomyelitis, stiff joints from old fractures, arthritis, amputations, healed osteomyelitis, torticollis, etc.—about which group in the majority of instances the same thing can be said—the defects do not prevent efficient work in civil life, nor seriously impair future health.

Preventive Conditions
Still another group of nearly half a million includes conditions that are preventable—tuberculosis (1,070,000), syphilis (286,000), gonorrhea (18,000) and other infections and parasitic diseases (4,000). These would be prevented in a civilized country where the intensive cultivation of the health of the entire population was the obligation and trust of the medical profession.

There remains one large group about which the possibilities are more speculative. These are the diseases of the circulation, the heart and blood vessels which made up 251,600 of the rejected.

In the age group examined, 18 to 37, it can be assumed that most of these cardio-vascular defects are due to rheumatic heart disease.

Rheumatic Heart
The rheumatic heart group by its numerical preponderance engages our attention, and the question arises how preventable is this serious and crippling menace to youth. For it is that. To rheumatic heart disease cannot be applied what was said of other defects that it does not constitute a threat to health. Many of these patients can work during their early years, but in all of them after the age of 30, and certainly of 40, serious and more or less permanent impairment of health is the rule.

The disease is unquestionably caused by a germ, but we do not know the germ, so we can provide no bacteriologic immunity. It begins as acute rheumatic fever affecting the serious membranes of the joints and also having an affinity for the serious membranes of the lining of the heart. It is the great cause of valvular heart disease.

If we prevent the rheumatic fever we prevent the heart disease. This acute rheumatism which particularly afflicts children has by long tradition occurred in company with dampness and cold. There are nearly three times as many cases in northern and seaboard states as in southern and inland states. But poverty has something to do with the causation also. Dr. Don Carlos Peete, of my own university, has presented studies to show that lack of sunshine and poor diet are the most important predisposing factors in bringing on rheumatic fever.

"Poverty and not dampness," he avers, "is the predisposing factor." It occurs in large families of the low income group with an average of 7.5 members per family; these families have to spread the milk, butter, eggs, meat and fresh vegetables too thin.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
M. P.:—When a person has a urinalysis done and it reports the specific gravity is such-and-such what does that mean?
Answer: Specific gravity in a fluid refers to how much solid matter is dissolved in it. The specific gravity of distilled water is 1. The normal specific gravity of urine is 1.020.

W. B.:—Is eating while reading harmful? Is black coffee constipating?

A: (1) No. (2) Coffee has no effect on intestinal movements one way or another. Since black coffee has no "roughage" it does not aid constipation, but you can take plenty of foods with it that do contain roughage.

Third Haven

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

MRS. REYNOLDS banged with her cane as Laura told Anne to "Get out and stay out." "That's enough out of you, Laura."

Laura pulled the stick from her mother's hands and flung it aside with a firm gesture. Then she faced Anne boldly.

"Are you getting out of here or do I have to call the police to put you out? There's a name for women like you, but I don't care to use it here. We don't want you in Talbot. Get out of here and go back where you came from."

Anne spoke for the first time. "Don't you think you've said enough?"

"I haven't begun," She pointed her finger. "Get out now."

The old lady swung around. For once Laura's manner frightened her. "What is all this? Laura, you're crazy. You—"

"Mother, this time I'm having my way. How many other times Anne sneaked out and what other men she ran around with is none of my business. I've put up with it. Lord knows who she was with or what she did before she came here or while she was in Washington. But last night she went too far. Russell and I are engaged. She dragged him out and made love to him, and then tried to force him to marry her. A woman like that!"

"It isn't true!" cried Anne.

"Russell says it is true. He begged me to marry him right away so you'd let him alone. You hung on his neck, kissing—"

"No! No! No!" Anne felt thoroughly bewildered.

Laura smiled. "Do you deny you were with my fiancé?"

"No. It was an accident. I—"

"Your coming here was an accident and a very unfortunate one. Do you want me to tell any more? I think not. Here is your check. There is time to catch the train. But I will not drive you to the station. I want people to see you walking."

Anne started to appeal to the old woman, who sat numb now, staring at her. For a moment she held out her hand, then it dropped to her side. No word came for her. She opened the screen door and picked up her bags. The front door banged loudly, shutting her out. She could see two women staring at her from their houses. The fat man who had spoken to her last night came along and smiled at her.

"Don't tell me you're going away a lovely day like this!"
Something in his laughing tone made up her mind. She smiled back. "I'm just going around to the inn. Could you carry a bag for me?"

He bowed from the waist. "To have you to talk to, I could even carry two."

She let him pick up the bags. The house door flung open and Laura popped out. "I told you to leave Talbot. The train is the other way."

Anne turned to her coolly. "I like Talbot, Miss Reynolds. And naturally I can't go without seeing Russell. What I do depends on him. Good-by."

She was astonished at her own voice and words, but they were effective. Laura went back into the house. The fat man picked up her bags again.

"I'm glad you like Talbot. I do. I've been coming here for years."

Anne made no reply as he rattled on about this and that. The dog, Suky, joined them and made a little procession which she knew people were watching. When they reached the inn Eleanor Bancroft greeted her gaily:

"Hello, there. I hope you're coming back to us."

"Have you a room for me?"
"Always. Here, Mr. Gifford, let me take one of those bags. You're just in time for lunch. I'm glad you met Mr. Gifford. I told him about you."

Anne laughed. All at once she couldn't help it. She said, "We met by moonlight. Moonlight is wonderful around here. That's why I couldn't think of leaving."

At lunch she was glad the fat man seemed contented to talk and talk and not expect her to answer questions. There were two or three other guests who were only interested in boats. She found her mind wandering off to Mrs. Reynolds and wondering what the old lady was doing. She thrust that thought away. Mrs. Reynolds had sat by and let Laura put her out. Laura was definitely in control now. And there was the matter of Russell. Was it possible Russell had told Laura that she had made love to him? That didn't seem sense, but Laura had known something.

After lunch she went to her room and unpacked. First of all, she had no intention of letting Laura or anyone else make her leave Talbot. Secondly, there was no place else for her to go. She had the check Laura had given her so scornfully and only a few dollars more. Laura had made out the check for a month's salary. It was the way one dismissed a servant, but Anne had no intention of making a dramatic gesture of flinging it back. She needed the money. It would be enough to keep her while she thought. As she had told Laura, she must see Russell. His kiss last night had made that absolutely necessary.

And there was Dan. All at once she realized she might not find being married to Dan such a joke. Suppose she fell in love? Suppose last night she had let herself yield to Russell's kisses? In spite of all common sense, her heart had leaped when he asked her to marry him. Right now she knew she couldn't go away without seeing him. All morning she had looked forward to seeing him tonight. And she hadn't even thought of Dan—her husband.

It left her feeling weak and helpless. She lay down to try to think calmly, and fell at once into a deep sleep. When she awoke she was amazed to see how long she had slept. There was only time to bathe and dress before the very early dinner which was served at the inn. But she felt better and less bewildered by her situation. Sleep had given her confidence and an unwarranted feeling that things had to turn out right in spite of all the Lauras in the world.

One little thing made her smile as she dressed. Laura had packed her things and put her out, but Laura had packed perfectly. Nothing was mussed or wrinkled. She felt she was looking her best as she went to sit on the porch until the dinner gong sounded. She was not even bothered when she saw the fat man there and he hailed her bubbling over with talk in his usual way. She even smiled at Dan as he came strolling up in his lazy way, and invited him up on the porch.

He shook his head. "I have a better idea. Come take a little walk with me."

"All right."

She fell into step by his side as they went along the Strand toward

Morris street. He seemed very quiet. She laughed and said:
"Why so dull today when I need someone to make me laugh?"

"I'm thinking about you."

"That's nice. Then we can both think about me. Did you know I'm not with Mrs. Reynolds any more?"

"Yes. Everybody in town knows. Why didn't you come straight to me?"

She looked at him in surprise. "Did you want me to do that?"

"Aren't you my wife?"

"I wonder." She hesitated, then said quickly, "It wasn't right to get married as we did."

"Do you feel that way? I suppose you do, when you went to the inn today. You didn't even send for me. You might have let me carry your bags."

"As if you wanted to do that."

"Anyway, I came around to invite you to supper. I was home all afternoon and I cooked something you like. Russell will be home soon. You'll want to talk to him."

"She threw him a quick glance. "Why should I want to talk to him?"

He laughed strangely. "I can think of lots of reasons. One is he's a lawyer. He can tell you the easiest way of getting rid of a husband you don't want. I guess I served my purpose. You showed your doctor friend you could get a husband even if it was only a pretty poor specimen of a man. I dare say he'd rattled on you some way, but that was none of my business. It isn't none."

"You make me sound pretty mean."

"Not at all. I used to wonder sometimes if any girl would have me. It used to bother me a little. I'll always remember the happiness we had for a few days and that one wonderful night under the stars. I'm not made for permanency, not even in that way. I couldn't take care of you." He laughed again. "Just the kind of a man that girls forget. When you want to get rid of me altogether, say the word and I'll clear out."

She was puzzled at his manner. "You might offer to stay, since I have no job."

He shrugged. "All right. I'll stay. I'll do anything I can. But let's walk faster so you can get some of my fancy pot roast. I'm not good for much in this world but I can cook a few things like that. Isn't it funny, the things a guy can do and can't do? It doesn't make sense sometimes."

She hesitated, then decided to go with him. As they walked past Mrs. Reynolds' house it had a closed-up look. They were both silent as they entered Russell's house, but he was not there. Dan faced her, grinning.

"Is it shades up or shades down?" he asked.

"Neither. I'll sit on the porch and wait till he comes."

"Do you mind if I sit with you?"

She sighed. "Dan, let's stop fooling. All this isn't right. We must tell Russell."

"Why? What good would that do? Unless you want to start out with me and we'll hobo to California."

"What would we do there?"

"Ah, that's it. What would we eat? Where would we sleep? Life's funny, isn't it?"

They sat side by side in two rocking chairs that faced out over the water, watching the lowering sun. Dan rested his hand on hers gently.

"I really mean I want to help you, Anne. What do you want me to do? Tell me."

WASHINGTON Report

Gastronomic Note: It's Onions for the Admiral!
Fashion Writers Draw Us In a Flood of Adjectives

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—No piece of informal news in months has delighted me as much as this bit written in by a bosom friend in the South Pacific:

"Admiral Nimitz gets definitely upset if he can't have onions. The admiral just dots on onions. He eats more of them than you would ever dream anybody would eat—of onions."

So Admiral Nimitz dots on onions! The admiral is as fine a fighting sailor as ever put a polished toe on quarter deck. He is a star among fleet commanders. Indeed he may be chosen as head of the coming big offensive against Japan. It would be interesting and very instructive to find out how successful fighting men dot on onions?

What kind of food do they dot on? What is the special delicacy or the roughage of other combat leaders? Does MacArthur crave chocolate ice cream? Does General Eisenhower thrive on fried chicken and mashed potatoes?

General Patton, so we used to be told, ate fire and brimstone. General Grant knew good whiskey when he tasted it. Just what is the favorite dish of various heroes? In other words—what are heroes made of? Speak up, you dietitians!

THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION has been sending out post-card questionnaires—"Do you—or do you not—wish to continue to receive releases from this office?" Obviously the war news or the information which the OWI thinks it can give to the public is diminishing.

Meanwhile, what are the Bright Minds of this sprawling organization doing with their red corpses? I may be wrong, but as I read the fashion copy in the magazines and newspapers I begin to think that in this blossoming prose are naughty inspirations from idle

DESIGNS with nothing in particular to go.

Certainly there's a military hangover in such an order as: "Attack autumnal gloom with this sword-slim, flame-bright satin suit that oves much of its drama to its brazen outside seams!" . . . Or . . . "March boldly forth in gay, triumphant colors. . . . Perch on your upturned coiffure a black, black (double black) beret that rises and sweeps and plunges to dramatic proportions and sublimates your entire soul arresting costume with its grandeur!"

Here's another—done likewise with exclamation points, a Roget's Thesaurus and a Blue Back Speller Book of Cliches—"The woman who flings this superlative fox stole over the slim shoulders of a simple jumper stands out alone in all her beauty like some new divine instrument soloing to the gods!" . . . Humph! Some babe—in the language of the average male.

"The prophetic silhouette" is worrying the stylists. Probably part of the post-war planning. Has the prophetic wiggled into the Dumbarton Oaks conversations yet? I hope not, because in the fashion advice to the careworn you-s and he-s, the truly prophetic silhouette has "the lure of a sophisticated mermaid transplanted from the sea to the sailor."

Such goings on! When all a woman wants is a dress that is reasonably becoming, will make other women reasonably envious and encourage some man to say: "You look swell today, honey."

For exciting as may be the thought of "the essence of blonde bewitching"—twas said one drop would make a woman the most ravishing thing in life, there just is not time to be the most ravishing thing in life—always.

Until store deliveries improve I don't want to "go a-marketing in a gallop down life's highway, or to frisk through fall days with shoes frankly flirting at the toes."

Don't care for toes, frankly flirting or beguilingly bunned. Nor do I want to be bothered with "drawstring drama" when I'm coping with 10 pounds of unripe though divinely dyed oranges in an ecstatic bulging bus. Even if I have topped my sleek head with "a cart-wheel hat, halo to a calot, and emphasizing its fragile beauty with my strict suit."

What's a "strict suit"? . . . Maybe it is a military secret. The OWI probably is at the bottom of the whole hilarious, dramatic (never forget "dramatic") fashion outlook for the woman with a "sugared cheek book."

STARS SAY—

For Tuesday, September 26

Judging by the lunar and mutual aspects of leading planets, this is to be a day of sharp conflicts, contradictions and complications. There is every promise of excellent accomplishments, in whatever direction they may be focused. But it will take extraordinary good management, shrewdness and sound judgment in order to reach cherished goals. It may take courage and fortitude to break away from certain old ties and obligations, while tossing overboard many outgrown or frustrating conditions. This may not be done with reckless acts, tempest and turbulence.

Those whose birthday it is may have a wonderful year of promise and achievement ahead of them, with definite advancement, expansion and pleasant progress in all goals and objectives, in finance, business, popularity and in social, domestic and affectional relations. But it may be imperative that several impending outgrown and trying ties, obligations or responsibilities be tossed away, although with kindness, consideration and a wise evaluation of existing circumstances and their control. Monday Club Continues Study of New Frontiers

Mrs. Johnson Speaks Before Assembly

The Monday club held its regular session Monday in the library trustees' room, Memorial hall, with Mrs. Lemuel B. Weldon presiding. On the general topic, "New Frontiers in Our Changing Time," Mrs. Lawrence Johnson discussed "Island Frontiers Along the Home Front." Mrs. G. D. Phillips discussed current events.

During the business hour, a recommendation was made by the executive board that Act I, Section 13, of the constitution be followed. This article is as follows: Any woman not permanently residing in Pickaway county may be admitted to one meeting during the club year.

Mrs. Weldon announced that Ohio History Day will be observed Sunday, October 1, at 2 p. m. at Logan Elm park. Thomas Herbert, attorney general of Ohio, will be guest speaker.

Mrs. Lawrence Johnson opened her talk with a discussion of two islands, St. Pierre and Miquelon, France's oldest and smallest colony, about 15 miles off the coast of Newfoundland.

The downfall of France in June, 1940, with the resultant cutting off of the supplies to the motherland, especially the sale of cod, hurt the islanders in heart and pocketbook. The news of this disaster was received with anguish. Father Poisson officiated at a solemn Mass for France, offered by the civil government. The church was crowded and from all these suffering hearts came one supplication, "Save France." In a plebiscite to choose between the course of Free France, and the course of collaboration with the Axis powers, the islanders favored Free France. While this act must have been approved by some circles in Ottawa and London, yet Washington felt that Vichy must be considered in order to save France's vital fleet and African bases from Hitler's clutch at that particular time.

For 300 years, Europe has had colonies in the Caribbean Sea, in our own backyard, so to speak. Before 1940, Americans were in Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Panama, but the British, Dutch and French possessions were isolated from American influence. The shortest route between the U. S. and Japan lies through Alaska and the Aleutian Islands which has given the U. S. much concern, because whoever controls the Aleutians has a flanking position on the whole Pacific ocean. In June, 1942, the Japs seized Attu and Kiska; this was a constant threat to Alaska, Canada and the U. S. While the Japs have been driven off, we must still defend the islands with thousands of soldiers.

She discussed Ascension Island, of volcanic origin, owned by the British and located in the South Atlantic, the island being used for a tank farm for the refueling of bombers crossing the South Atlantic. It was used in the successful invasion of North Africa.

Mrs. Phillips, in discussing current events, brought out the developments necessary for an effective conclusion of the war in Europe, namely: the crossing the Rhine and the breaking of the German West Wall; a Russian breakthrough around Warsaw; good weather; to permit the utmost use of Allied superiority in the air; the trapping of the German forces in Italy as well as in the Balkans.

At the same time, in the war against Japan, greater forces, especially ground troops, are necessary. The recent turn of affairs in China has been a tragedy to us. She explained why we can scarcely expect the defeat of Japan before 1946.

Mrs. Phillips said that V-E day, Germany's downfall, will start the gradual return to civil life of many veterans. She gave the factors considered in releasing a man from service or transferring them to the other theatre of war. Germany's collapse will relieve all rationing except gasoline, (because it will take more gas and oil to lick the Japs than we are now using against both Germany and Japan), shoes, butter and sugar.

Mrs. Russell Lutz, the former Cleo Davis, of Circleville, was honored at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Cecil Lutz, 443 East Ohio street, with Miss Dorothy Lutz as assisting hostess. Pink and white decorations were used in the home and in the show arrangement, gifts being placed on a table beneath a pink and white umbrella. After the many lovely packages were opened by the bride, contests were enjoyed with prizes going to Miss Jeanne Weaver and Mrs. F. A. Ward. A dessert course concluded the affair.

Guests in addition to Mrs. Lutz were: Mrs. Harley Lutz, Miss Florence Lutz, of near Kingston; Mrs. Lloyd Davis, Miss Rosemary Davis, Miss Peggy Davis, Miss Jeanne Weaver, Miss Hazel Arledge, Mrs. Betty Lane, Miss Ruth Arledge, Miss Faye Arledge, Miss Mary K. This copy of Vistas is devoted exclusively to selections from Pickaway County's entries in the Ohio Poetry Day contest. It had been edited by the Rev. L. C. Sherburne, Mr. McDowell and Gertrude W. Robinson. The proceeds from this sale will be used to start a fund to defray the expense of future issues.

If you want to press a crepey dress, do not dampen it, but press it bone dry. If wrinkles remain, use one of the new chemically treated press cloths over the fab- ric. You may be able to buy one at the notion counter of your down- town department store.

If you are laying a new floor in your home, remember that a layer of heavy building felt between the two layers of flooring will help to prevent squeaks from developing.

Do not forget to give the bath- room clothes hamper a good wash- ing out every two or three months. After the washing, set the hamper out in the sun for several hours.

If you are planning to paint things inside or outside your house, have some linseed oil on your paint shelf before you start. When you get paint on your hands, as you are bound to do, rub the oil thor- oughly into them, then wash well with a good soap. If the paint hasn't been on too long, this meth- od is to be commended over the turpentine or benzine.

Public Warning!
BEWARE OF PIN-WORMS
Warlike living conditions may be the cause of spreading Pin-Worm infection. Scientific reports in many communities have shown at least one-third of the examined children and grown-ups to be victims of Pin-Worms—often without know- ing what was wrong!
Watch out for the warning signs that may mean Pin-Worms in your child or yourself: the tormenting, embarrassing, itching, the uneasy stomach, bed-wet- ting, nervous, listless, finicky appetite.
New Discovery Hailed By Doctors
After centuries of distress caused by Pin- Worms, a new and highly effective way to deal with this stubborn pest has recently been discovered. This scientific discovery, hailed by medical authorities, is a remark- able drug (gentian violet). It is the vital element in P-W, the new Pin-Worm treat- ment developed by the laboratories of Dr. D. J. J. & Son, America's leading special- ists in worm medicines. P-W tablets are small and easy to take, and they act in a special way to destroy the creatures. So don't take chances with Pin-Worms. At the first warning sign, ask your drug- gist for P-W, and follow the directions. P-W means Pin-Worm relief!

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)
South West North East
2NT Pass 3NT East
With his powerful holding, South debated between starting with 1-Spade and 2-Spades. He decided he did not like the forc- ing game-guarantee 2-Spades, which would probably result in 2-No Trumps from North. 3-Hearts from himself and then 3-No Trumps by North, which would cause South's big hand to go down as dummy, the lead com- ing through its tenaces.
All at once, it hit him that he had a very sound hand for 2-No Trumps, and that this also would enable him to score the 150 for holding four aces, besides making him the declarer instead of his partner if North raised to 3-No Trumps.

Thinking quite well of himself, he was pleased, when West picked the diamond 3, to see the Q in dummy. He put on that card, hop- ing West held the K, but East did and covered. Considering that a hold-up would be futile, South took this with the A, scored the club A, led the Q to the K and then staked his entire venture on the spade finesse. When West won with the K, four diamond tricks set him.

If South had started with either one or two in spades, he could have got into 6-Spades, making it de- spite any lead because a diamond could be discarded on clubs before trying the adverse spade finesse.

Why should it be easy for East and West to put up the correct defense against South's 4-Spades on this deal, if the contract is reached by correct bidding?

Veterans and Young Stars Put Bucks On Spot

Les Horvath

Gordon Appleby

Bill Willis

with a flock of high school stars, the Battling Bucks of Ohio State university present all the makings of a championship club this season.

The spotlight's on the Bucks and that "ain't good." Every time they start building up a championship club via the publicity route the club begins to wobble and if it wobbles enough it falls.

It more or less puts the new coach, Carroll Widdoes, on the spot. Undoubtedly he is blessed with the best civilian football material in the Western Conference. But a coach needs more than that. He needs the breaks, a favorable schedule and must escape injury.

Line Is Terrific

Widdoes well-schooled in the Paul Brown football system, having served under Brown, now Great Lakes coach, for 10 years at Massillon, O., high school, and later at Ohio State.

Let's look at the line. It is here Widdoes has enough to make the Buck foes stay away on play dates.

The forward wall is made up of five regulars and two subs from last year.

Jack Dugger, 210-pound end from last year, will be bidding for an all-American spot. Bill Willis, the terrific 205-pound Negro tackle from the 1943 squad, is another all-American bet. At center there is Gordon Appleby, regular center for the last two years. Russ Thomas, 220-pound tackle, was a letter winner last year. The fifth letterman on the line, Bill Hackett, junior guard, is a 190-pounder.

For the other end spot Widdoes is using Traian Dendia, a 17-year-old freshman. At the other guard a three-way fight has developed with George Neff and Paul Maltinsky, both from last year's squad, and Freshman Tom Snyder, fighting for the berth.

Horvath Returns

Les Horvath, outstanding back of the strong 1942 eleven and an all-Big Nine choice then, is the "big boy" in the backfield. Horvath is returning to the campus after his release from Army service.

Horvath is a terrific runner and does most of the backfield chores with the finesse of a triple-threat star.

Supporting Horvath will be newcomers, but highly-praised high school stars. Tom Keane, Bob Brugge, Dick Flanagan and Ollie Cline are boys being talked about. Keane, 17-year-old quarterback

TALL LOCKBOURNE CAGE SQUAD STARTS PRACTICE

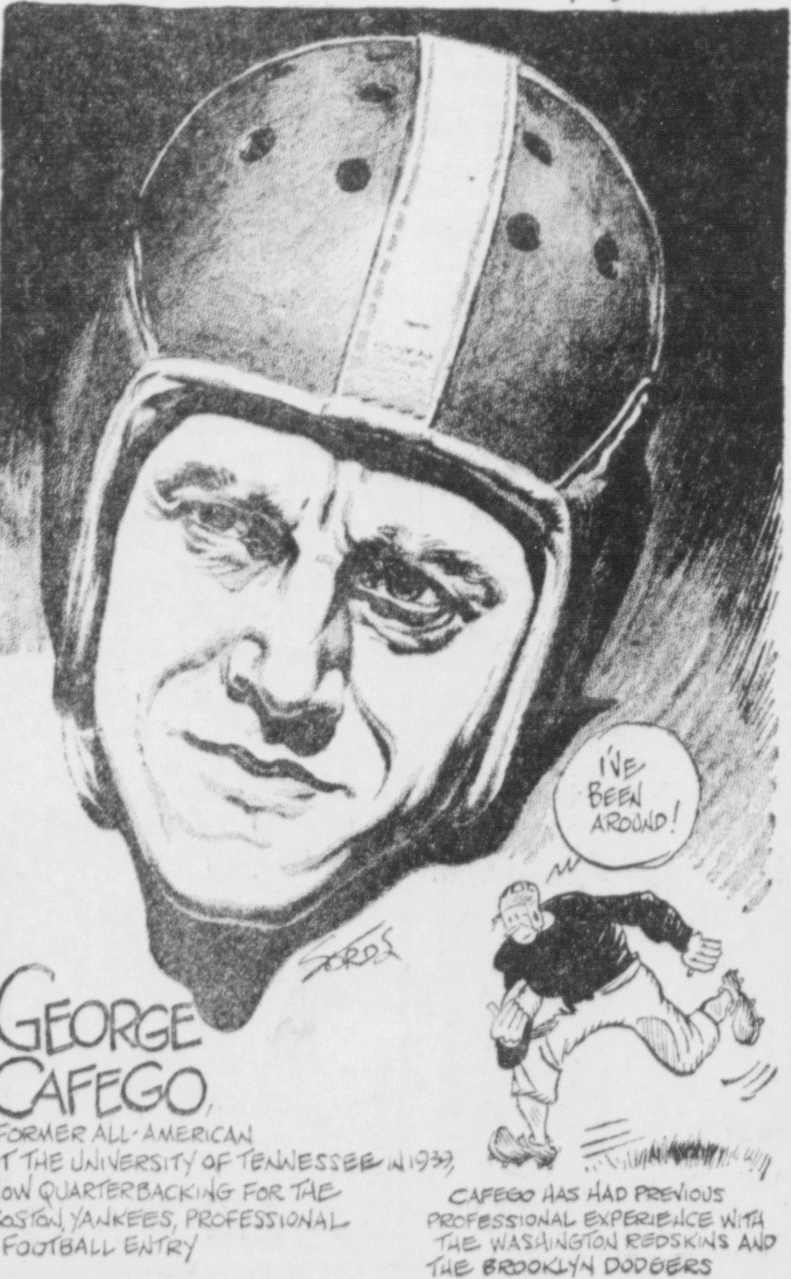

Height, which is an important factor in basketball will be very much in evidence on the Lockbourne Army Air Base basketball team this Winter.

That was the impression gathered as some 50 candidates met yesterday in the base gym with Lt. Arnold A. Jacoby, coach of the Fliers, for the initial workout.

From the large group which turned out for the opening drill, at least three fourths of the basketballers measured well over six feet in height.

The Fliers will conduct sessions Tuesday and Thursday for the next few weeks after which they will get down to serious business with daily practices scheduled.

BROWNS, TIGERS TIED FOR LEAD IN JUNIOR LEAGUE

St. Louis Wins Behind Two Hit Pitching Of Potter While Detroit Loses

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—The hottest American League pennant race since 1908, when the Detroit Tigers nosed out the Cleveland Indians by half a game, has ended into another of its dozen climaxes today with the arrival of the St. Louis Browns into a first-place tie with the Detroit Tigers.

The Browns (once vaunted then counted out of the fight) came to death grips with the Tigers through a 3 to 0 triumph over the Boston Red Sox last night as Nelson Potter pitched a shutout. Potter gave up only two hits, both of which came in the third inning.

The New York Yankees, meanwhile kept their hat in the ring with two spirited decisions over the Philadelphia Athletics, 3 to 1 in twelve innings and 5 to 4. A triple by Johnny Lindel and a double by Nick Etten gave the Yankees their opening triumph, and in the nightcap, Herschel Martin drove in all the five Yankee runs with two homers, one in the third and the other in the seventh.

The Tigers temporarily were slowed up when Detroit was set down with four hits by Russ Christopher in losing to the seventh-place Philadelphia Athletics, 2 to 1. The winning run came in the eighth inning on Irv Hall's double and Floyd Garrison's single to center.

In the more uninteresting part of the American League, the Cleveland Indians scored a 6 to 0 triumph over the hapless Washington Senators. Ed Kleiman hurled four-hit ball as his teammates collected 11 hits off Mickey Haefer and Arnold Thesinger, who relieved the starter in the seventh.

In the National League, the Chicago Cubs took two from the Philadelphia Phillies, 7 to 6 in 11 innings and 4 to 1. A relief job by Hi Vandenberg took the first and a six-hitter by Claude Passeau was good enough to win the afterpiece as Chicago hit two Philly pitchers for nine safeties.

The Pittsburgh Pirates won one-inning play-off, 13 to 8, in the finish of a contest hung over from August 1, then dropped the second half of the twin bill to the Braves, 5 to 4 in 13 innings. The play-off was a breeze for the Pirates, since they were ahead, 12 to 8, when called upon to catch a train. The afterpiece, however, was won on Phil Masi's double and Stew Hofferth's single as the Braves conquered for Pitcher Charley Barrett.

The Brooklyn Dodgers lost their single contest to the St. Louis Cards, 3 to 1. Poor support behind Rube Melton's seven-hit pitching accounted for the Brooklyn loss, since all the Card runs were unearned and two came in the ninth inning to break a 1-1 tie and gave Harry Brecheen the triumph.

The smallest Polo Grounds crowd of the year—982—saw the Giants nose out the Cincinnati Reds 3 to 2. Ed Heusser was poised for a shutout when the Giants tied up the game in the eighth and won in the ninth on Buddy Kerr's homer. Harry Feldman started for New York but gave way in the ninth for Ace Adams.

PATTON, TUNSTILL HEAD LOCKBOURNE MIT PROGRAM

Sammy Patton was signed today to meet Pvt. Frank Tunstall in the headliner of an all-star boxing card at the Lockbourne Army Air Base gym Friday night.

Both boys met last year in the finals of the Golden Gloves tournament with Tunstall taking the 118 pound championship after a whirlwind three-round battle.

In that fight Tunstall was knocked to his knees for a count of nine in the second round but came back with a flurry of leather in the final round to win a split decision.

Other bouts on the card will pit Benny Green against Bill Watson at 120 pounds, Sammy Simpson against Cleophus Lane at 135 pounds, Frank Smith vs. Prince Poindexter at 132 pounds and Cpl. John Grider vs. Sgt. James Mattox at 175 pounds.

Three other bouts yet to be announced will complete the card.

VET PROBLEM AIRED

Col. Paul H. Griffith, chief of the Veterans' Personnel Division of the Selective Service system, joins Harry W. Colmery, past national commander of the American Legion, in maintaining that returning soldiers should have job preference over senior workers, when both appear as speakers on "America's Town Meeting of the Air" in its broadcast from St. Louis, Thursday.

SAVOY ENDS RUN

Harry Savoy, that confused comedian, winds up his summer season Thursday, Abbott and Costello, for whom he has been substituting, resume Thursday, Oct. 5.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Jimmy Durante and Garry Moore, co-starred Friday nights, had planned to visit with their broadcast in New York this winter but a switch in plans now finds them hoping to get east by spring. Moore goes into the new "Houdini" picture which doesn't start production until November, and Durante also has film commitments which will keep him busy. As a result, Durante, who was scheduled to open at the Copacabana night club in New York, where he broke all attendance records last season, has had to postpone that date.

You can look for "Blondie" and her radio family to turn up all over the dial, Sunday nights, Penny Singleton and Arthur Lake, plan to exchange visits with their dial neighbors, to make the early evening hours one complete network party.

Louise Fitch and Ned Weaver, both popular artists of the microphone, will have the lead in the new daytime mystery series, "Two on a Clue," which starts on Monday.

A song which was composed in a New Guinea fox hole, "A Soldier's Last Letter," will be heard on the "Grand Ole Opry" program on Saturday. Already a hit with the show's listeners, the song was first thought up by Sgt. Henry Stewart last winter during a lull in the fighting. Stewart, who used to be a "Grand Ole Opry" musician, mailed his letter to officials of the show. Just before it arrived, Stewart had died in battle.

DUNNINGER PLAYS ANAGRAMS

Dunninger, the Master Mentalist, plays a game of mental anagrams with his three judges, modelom's Anita Stewart, songwriter Irving Caesar and actress Claudia Morgan, on his broadcast on Wednesday. The judges will select a well known phrase, then mix up the letters in it. Dunninger, by thought-reading, will attempt to name off the letters in their scrambled order, then to repeat the phrase as the judges first conceived it.

Whitely Ford, the Duke of Paducah featured on the "Grand Ole Opry," was really celebrating when he talked about his anniversaries over the air last Saturday night. September 23 was his fifteenth wedding anniversary, and September 25 marked the completion of his first year with the highly popular coast-to-coast show.

ALL ABOARD!

PITTSBURGH. — Two large wood-burning, narrow-gauge locomotives built by the H. P. Porter Co. of Pittsburgh, soon will be in operation on the "Grand Lacs Railroad" in French Equatorial Africa. Weighing 115-tons, the locomotives will run along 1,000 miles of track through the jungle. They will be manned by natives.

Pumpkin Show Society Votes To Buy Site for Fairgrounds

FIELD HOUSE INCLUDED IN BUILDING PLAN

Committee Selected To Pick Suitable Property For Location of Project

Pickaway County Agricultural Society Tuesday had voted to purchase a site for a fairground and field house.

At a meeting Monday night in the council rooms in city hall, members voted to buy land for the fairgrounds and a committee was named to view sites and negotiate for the purchase of the land. Russell Palm was appointed chairman of the committee. Other members are Leslie D. May, F. K. Blair, John Keller and Paul Johnson.

Boyd Stout was appointed to fill the unexpired term of George McDowell, resigned.

Members of the junior fair board reported that plans were progressing for the event which will be held Oct. 18, 19, 20, 21.

At a previous meeting of the Society members voted to ask the county commissioners to place on the November ballot a one-mill agricultural levy to finance purchase of land and construction of a field house. No further action has been taken on this proposal.

Members Monday night decided to go ahead with purchase of land if possible with money now available. Whether or not the levy will be placed on the ballot will be decided later. Some members favor holding up the levy and making it smaller and for the purpose of financing a field house only.

Purchase of the land and maintenance of the grounds could be financed by county funds. The commissioners are permitted by law to spend $12,000 a year for this purpose.

Final decision on the levy is to be made after the site committee has contacted landowners and makes it report.

HUMANE SOCIETY WORK OUTLINED TO KIWANIS

Work of the Humane Society of the City of Columbus was outlined by Tom Justice, general manager, at Monday evening's meeting of Kiwanis club in Hanley's restaurant.

He explained that the organization, not only looked after the pets but also had a children's department in which children, indigent adults, abandoned mothers and others were aided. In addition to checking up on common abuses of animals the society enforces animal laws in Columbus and Franklin county; investigates animal claims; checks livestock yards and has helped reduce meat food losses by introducing more sanitary and humane measures in the yards.

Mr. Justice stated that the education department of the society was one of the most important. His organization supplies material which is used in schools in the city and county. He credits the educational program with practically eliminating rabies from the county. The organization maintains several small animal ambulances which also may be used to assist human beings, and a large animal ambulance into which can be loaded horses or cows so that they can be removed to the clinic for treatment.

Following his talk a sound, color movie "Animals and Their Services to Man" was presented.

Dwight Steele introduced Mr. Justice and announced that next Monday's meeting would honor newspapers since National Newspaper Week is to be observed next

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Governor Dewey is reported to have made a big hit with Scandinavian leaders in Seattle. About 100 came in for a private session from all parts of Washington. Most went away singing his praises. . . . Dewey also adopted the private meeting strategy with labor at Seattle, met with about 40 AFL leaders, who fired questions, seemed friendly. One electrical worker chief asked if he thought labor had a right to strike against government-owned power projects at Grand Coulee and Bonneville. Dewey said no, government should serve as the neutral arbiter between labor and business, must never be the target of a strike.

SHOWDOWN ON ITALY The men most responsible for Roosevelt's confidential showdown with Churchill at Quebec over more relief for Italy are Brig. Gen. Bill O'Dwyer, former Brooklyn prosecutor, and Generoso Pope, foremost Italo-American publisher.

General O'Dwyer, who was candidate for mayor of New York against La Guardia in 1942, was sent to Italy by Roosevelt to study the entire Italian civilian picture, brought back an urgent program which the President gave Churchill in Quebec.

Publisher Pope was among the first to organize the American Friends of Italian Democracy for relief to Italy, and has hammered home the right of Italo-Americans to help feed and clothe their friends in Italy. He has told the President that this could save money to the U. S. tax-payer, as well as encourage Democratic principles inside Italy. Army brass-hats, however, have wanted to handle the job—inadequately—themselves.

Publisher Pope, who came to this country as an orphan immigrant at the age of eight, was born in the village of Terranova, a community which up until 1928 never had electricity. But in 1928 Pope sent $20,000 to his brother, asking him to have electric current brought into the village. Later Pope learned that the village would not have the money to pay for the electric current, so he has been paying the bill ever since, until the war started.

CONTOUR WHEAT SEEDING URGED BY AAA OFFICE

Farmers were urged today to seed their wheat on the contour this Fall, by John G. Boggs, Pickaway county AAA chairman. "Farmers can earn AAA payment for carrying out the practice, Mr. Boggs said, "but the other benefits to the farm are far greater than the amount so earned."

"Slowing up the run-off of water and melting snows during the winter and spring months is of greater help in conserving soil. We can add minerals and fertilizers to the soil, but if we permit it then to wash away, such practices will do very little good," Mr. Boggs explained.

The ABC's of American Destiny

From cottages to mansions . . . in cities, towns and rural sections throughout this land, millions of boys and girls have gone back to school.

Nothing is more important to the future of America than the sound education of our children. For tomorrow, they will take over the reins of government, the controls of industry, and carry on the spiritual, intellectual and material progress of the nation.

The schools of America have been the core of American civilization. In the critical years ahead, as never before, they must serve as the training grounds, where the youth of the land are taught that freedom and independence are the proven fundamentals which have made the nation great, and will keep it strong and free. And always, we must be alert to, and stand like a rock, against the filtration into classrooms of any false doctrines or propaganda that would poison young minds and destroy the American way of life.

To this end, our children must be given the finest teaching personnel and schools, where discipline, intelligence and character can and will train them to become enlightened, independent, useful citizens.

This is the solemn, vital responsibility of every citizen, every community and every state . . . to the children of America. Their responsibility will be shaping the destiny of America.
